

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF PARAMEDICS CONDEMNS ALL FORMS OF RACISM AND DISCRIMINATION

April 2026

We recognise that current global events have caused distress and anxiety for many, and we continue to stand by our communities during these challenging times.

The Royal College of Paramedics is committed to increasing awareness and promoting action against all forms of racism and discrimination.

We resolutely condemn and stand against antisemitism, Islamophobia, xenophobia and all related forms of intolerance, and together with our healthcare partners and communities we take a zero-tolerance approach to hate crime.

In these uncertain times, it is now more important than ever that we foster understanding, respect and kindness towards one another. The Royal College of Paramedics stands firmly against the scourge of racism and discrimination and is committed to working together with our members and stakeholders to protect the dignity, justice, equality, and rights of every paramedic, patient and member of the public.

We will continue to strengthen our education, guidance and partnership work to help create safe, inclusive environments across all paramedic settings.

We also remain committed to supporting any paramedic or member of the public affected by hate or discrimination, ensuring they can report concerns safely and that their voice will be heard.
